

Quality Guard – Food Safety Consultant London

Become a guardian of a leading allergens & food safety

Are you our Food Safety Consultant for London?

You walk into a bakery, a butcher's shop, or a busy restaurant kitchen - and by the time you leave, food safety is no longer something they worry about. That's the job.

Our consultants are the ones who build the client relationship: through expertise, training, and hands-on advice. You make sure our clients truly master Quality Guard, so self-inspection and food safety stop being a source of stress and simply become second nature.

To get clients there, Advise BVBA runs dedicated training courses. Once someone has been through your training, the application holds no more secrets for them.

In most cases, clients use our self-inspection support software, and your sessions are exactly where they learn to make it their own.

As a Food Safety Consultant, you deliver that training. But you're more than a trainer: you become the trusted advisor clients turn to for food safety and self-inspection, long after the course ends.

Who are you?

- You hold a Bachelor's degree in Nutrition and Dietetics.
- You explain things clearly and in a structured way, so it actually sticks.
- You listen first, then help clients as far as you can go.
- You're reachable by phone during business hours.
- You hold a driver's license, since you're often on the road meeting clients where they work.
- You're keen to work in London.

What do we offer?

- A professional environment where your expertise is put to work every day.
- A spot in a fast-paced company and a genuinely dynamic team.
- Around 3 months of on-the-job training, so you start strong and never feel thrown in the deep end.
- Competitive pay and flexible working hours.

Interested? Apply using the button below.

<https://qualityguard.com/>